70% of the earth’s surface is water
3% of it is fresh water
1% available for human use
EARLY HISTORY
SECURING PROSPERITY
250,000,000 Gallons / Day
BLUE | GREEN
Infrastructure + Urban + Architecture
ABC WATERSITES
ACTIVE, BEAUTIFUL + CLEAN WATERS
Humanizing the Megascale

We have pioneered a new urban vision to enhance the quality of life for the rapidly densifying 21st century world.
IN ADDITION...
HAWKER MARKET
CULINARY MELTING POT
MARINA BY THE BAY
LASER LIGHT SHOWS
Travel Dates:
Pre Travel Ann Arbor May 5-7
Arrival in Singapore May 9
Return to Ann Arbor May 25

Flights:
Travel time range 20-30 hours
Prices do no include ground transportation

Average cost:
DTW-SIN with layover $1100
YTO-SIN with layover $850
ORD-SIN with layover $800
EWR-SIN direct $1400
Travel Dates:
Pre Travel Ann Arbor May 5-7
Arrival in Singapore May 10
Return to Ann Arbor May 27

Accommodations:
Airbnb - short-term home sharing is illegal in Singapore, book at your own risk

Average cost:
Dorm Style Hostel $20/night @ 18 days $360

Sharing Option
Two Star Hotel $30 - $45/night @ 18 days $540 - $810
Three Star Hotel $50-$70/night @ 18 days $900 - $1260
Four Star and up $90-$100/night @ 18 days $1620 - $1800
Travel Dates:
Pre Travel Ann Arbor May 5-7
Arrival in Singapore May 10
Return to Ann Arbor May 27

Miscellaneous:
Entrance Fees: Approximately $50
Meals + Daily Transportation: Approximately $40 / day
Public Transportation – MRT bus and train 3 day Singapore Tourist Pass $15 covers entire country
Grab – Singapore ride share app. Cost varies.
We will be using a mix of these transportation options

Travel Insurance:
Approximately $28 entire trip
Travel Dates:
Pre Travel Ann Arbor  May 5-7
Arrival in Singapore  May 10
Return to Ann Arbor   May 27

Total Costs:
Total cost will vary depending on departing airport, accommodations and how much you eat.

Total per student:
Approximately  $1800 - $3500

Taubman college students with Taubman Travel Fund:
Approximately  $800 - $2500
Travel Notes:

How to travel to Singapore without getting caned

These are not to discourage you from traveling

Singapore Carries Out the Caning of a U.S. Teen-Ager

By PHILIP SHEENON
Agence in the New York Times

SINGAPORE, May 8 — A punishment of four lashes on the bare back with a rattan cane was carried out today on a 17-year-old American who had pleaded guilty to vandalism.

The Singapore Prisoners Department said the American, Michael P. Fay, was examined by the prison doctor after the caning and found to be in satisfactory condition as the prison where he is serving a four-month sentence for spray-painting cars and other acts.

Mr. Fay had contended, however, that he was not independent and confirmed. Officials at the United States Embassy said they had requested a meeting with Mr. Fay as soon as possible, but no meeting had been scheduled.

People who have had the good fortune to see how it relates in heavy blinding rain, in the final examination of a man who is subject to their testimony and who is subject to their examination, and to their decision. The New York Times

Final Fling Rejected

On Wednesday, the Government of this wealthy, authoritarian city-state rejected Mr. Fay's final plea that he be spared the flogging, but it did agree to reduce the number of lashes from four to six, in what it said was a gesture of good will toward President Clinton, who had asked that the sentence be commuted altogether.

The government has expressed disappointment with Singapore's actions, a move which I think it was a mistake, as I said before, not only because of the nature of the punishment involved in this crime but because of the questions that were raised by the Fay family. Mr. Fay was in fact guilty and irrevocably convicted.

Mr. Fay signed a statement in October 1998 confessing to a 14-day period of vandalism in which he and several other foreigners accused of spray-painting several expensive cars, including one owned by Mr. Fay, smashed car windows, threw eggs at other vehicles. But Mr. Fay has since recanted, saying that he is innocent of any crime. He has asserted that the confession was coerced by the police and that he came only after nine days of interrogations in which he was repeatedly punched and slapped and deprived of sleep.

The 17-year-old American student, who had just spent his first summer in college in Europe, was sentenced to a term of two years in prison and ordered that they beat him, as he went home from Dayton, Ohio, in 1992 to live with his mother and stepfather. Mr. Fay's family has said the beating was not entirely due to receiving assurances that he would not be caned.

In defending the decision to flog Mr. Fay, Government leaders have cited the need to maintain order in the streets, and the flogging as an effective means of ensuring that justice is done. Mr. Fay was sentenced to three years and six months in prison but later was released on appeal. The Singapore authorities say that Mike is fine, but that's his business, and it is true that they have only been told to believe him, but they are describing the flogging as "a double whammy"—first there is the brutality of it and second, there's every indication that there has been a miscarriage of justice.

Mr. Fay, chief executive of an automobile company in Dayton, had been convicted last month of vandalism in the same case and now faces 12 lashes, a punishment that lawyers have been quoted as saying is connected to the case described as "extraordinarily harsh", given his age and his lack of a criminal record.

Since the Government has tried to turn this case into a trial of the democracy of the Asian model of human rights, I think it would now be very hard for them to commit the sentence of an Asian," a Western diplo-
Travel Notes:
How to travel to Singapore without getting caned

1. No gum chewing
2. No smoking in public spaces
3. No eating on public transit
4. No littering or spitting
5. No drugs
6. No vandalism or graffiti
7. Flush public toilets after use

Most of these offenses come with a fine but can also include caning and jail time.
WATER FUTURES | SIN

INFO SESSION:
Feb. 13th 6PM
West Review

Jonathan Rule – jonrule@umich.edu